SECRETARY'S MESSAGE

Dear Readers,

In the words of Nelson Mandela, “There can be no greater gift than that of giving one's time and energy for the betterment of public at large”

I second this saying as I feel that the entire CICASA team is grateful to be elected as the committee members working for the betterment of students.

As Secretary of CICASA Indore, I am overwhelmed to address my first message to you. With great authority comes equally great responsibilities and we, the CICASA committee members, have taken this responsibility to meet the expectations of CA Students, be it academic support, solving grievances of students or providing opportunities for all round development of future CAs.

Being one of you until few months back I can completely understand the importance of co-curricular activities in this journey and it is hence on top of our priority list to continuously enrich your daily happiness index by frequently conducting various fun filled activities. However it is nothing but your participation that motivates us to continue doing such events in future.

I am also happy to apprise you about the success of our first ever web series, “Just CA Things “, which takes you down the journey of a CA Student in a very humorous way.

Well, I know by this time you would be neck deep into studies but remember fellas no matter how much efforts you put in during this time, everything will sum up to those 3 hours of your exam day. Hence it is equally important for you to give your examination with a cool and stable mental state rather than rushing up through the syllabus in the last moment and losing your mental stability and confidence.

So finally to conclude I would like to thank you for bearing with me patiently until now. Leaving you with this thought which has been my source of inspiration in this journey called “LIFE”:

“All our anxiety and stress before any occasion in our life will subside if our emotions are detached from the outcome of event.”

Wishing you and your family a very happy and safe Diwali.

All the best for your exams.

Prakhar Porwal

Secretary, CICASA Indore.

FINANCIAL REPORTING ISSUES TO CONSIDER AS A CONSEQUENCE OF COVID-19

The pandemic, Covid-19, has proved to be testing for humanity. Death tolls and confirmed cases have been increasing alarmingly across countries. The business fraternity are sat crossing their fingers as the disastrous consequences of Covid-19 on economy and business rise beyond their imagination. Stock markets have hit bottom in several countries, and many governments are still contemplating the mechanisms needed to pull back the economy from the imminent slowdown.

The uncertainty mounting over India's economy has severed the hopes of many stakeholders.

ACCOUNTING PROVISIONS

As the Covid-19 outbreak is rapidly spreading in India, how it is going to impact the accounting and audit practices is a serious concern for many. Business entities would be indulging in efforts to mitigate the impact of this catastrophe on their operations. Financial statements would also need to account for such eventualities while reporting. As accounting involves the use of judgment on the expected cash flow stream and expense of a company, uncertainty in the business environment would require revision of estimates on revenues and expenses. For instance, companies would have accounted for some percentage of their accounts receivables as bad debts.

Given the current scenario, there is a possibility of delay or failure to repay from creditors. Companies need to figure out an additional provision for bad debts. For banks, loan-loss provisioning is going to be affected more, since their clients may not be able to pay back the loan in due time. Due to the plant lockdown and lack of maintenance and servicing of equipment, the estimated life of a physical asset needs to be reassessed. Eventually, this would affect the depreciation charged on such assets.

With the prevalence of many holding companies and their listed subsidiaries in India, the volatile stock market would severely hit the balance sheet of holding companies. Since the stock price of many firms is at their record low, holding companies need to adjust or record an impairment of their investment in subsidiaries in their balance sheet.

Moreover, most of the accounting treatments rely on the assumption of “going concern”, which says that the company is going to exist forever, and accountants make estimates based on this assumption. As the Covid catastrophe is spreading across the globe, there needs to be much caution and care while making judgments on estimates based on the “going concern” principle.

ICAI ADVISORY

Against this backdrop, the accounting regulator of the country, the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI) has issued an advisory on the “Impact of Coronavirus on Financial Reporting and the Auditors Consideration”. This advisory attempts to familiarise the preparers and auditors with some critical areas that require special attention amid this pandemic.

Firms may consider writing down inventories to net realisable value due to the ongoing disruption in the supply chain, reduction in sales price or obsolescence of inventory, says the ICAI's advisory. Assets might have to test for impairment as there may be a situation where it is difficult to account for the ability of an asset to generate cash flows in the future due to events such as temporary ceasing of operations and an immediate decline in demand or prices.

Another critical area of attention required is concerning fair value measurement. Fair value accounting is the practice of measuring assets and liabilities at their current market value. As available market price is a crucial element in fair value measurements, the current volatility in the prices of financial instruments poses significant challenges for the firm to arrive at the fair value for financial assets. Further, it also requires that transactions in an orderly market base the quoted prices. There should not be any unnecessary pressure to sell or distressed selling in the market as they do not resemble orderly transactions.

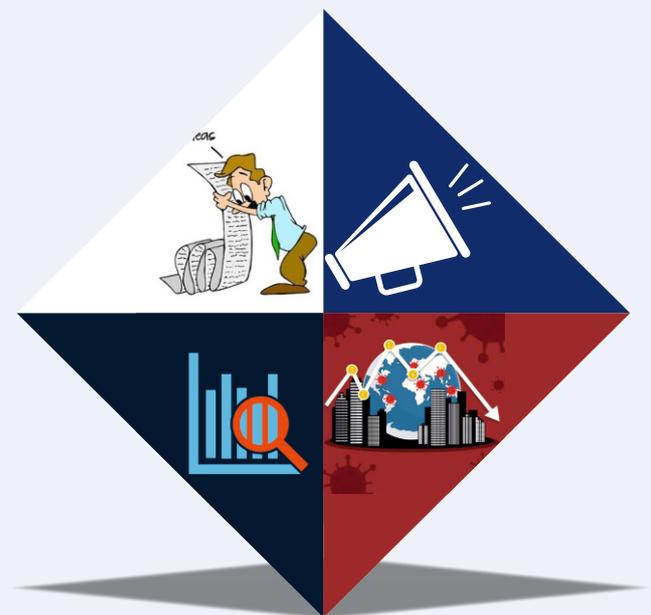

The ICAI guidelines also warn that, due to Covid-19, there could be a possibility of an increase in sales returns, decrease in volume discounts, higher price discounts etc. Therefore, the amount of revenue to be recognised needs scrutiny given the scope of the relevant AS and Ind AS.

AUDITING CHANGES

Auditing would also face serious issues as it would be difficult for auditors to access the client location to conduct the stock audit and cash audit amid this situation. However, the quality of auditing cannot be compromised, says the ICAI's guidance. Auditors have to come up with alternate arrangements to conduct auditing effectively.

Meanwhile, the applicability Companies (Auditor's Report) Order (CARO) 2020, which mandates newer and more stringent audit rules, has been postponed to the next financial year.

Since the economic impact of Covid-19 continues to evolve rapidly, firms should monitor this situation carefully and liaison closely with their board of directors, external auditors and other stakeholders, including the regulators, as the situation progresses.

वंदे मातरम फिर रविन्द्रनाथ बोलते ।
वंदे मातरम वाले स्वर आज फिर बुलन्द कर ले ।
आओ आज फिर ऐसे ही भजन कर ले ।

अकसर लोगों की चक चोढ़ देखकर क्यों घबराता हूँ
ना जाने मैं लोगों से क्यों कतराता हूँ ।

लगता है नही लड पाऊंगा मैं इनसे,
पर बिन प्रयास मान जाऊं मैं कैसे ।

कई बार गिरकर फिर उठ जाता है मेरे जूनून,
फिर जीत के बाद ही मिलता है शूकून ।

जीत के बाद वो शिकवे वो मेहनत याद आएंगे,
वो बिन नींदों की राते मुझे राहत की नींद सुलायेंगे ।
